

Iron Ore Fines- Report

Domestic Scenario

Dim market prevailed in the entire month of October accompanied by global economic recession. Import Iron ore market has remained quiet in China as demand from consumers runs so weak, and it is hard to conclude any deals at present along with a sharp price decrease.

The export market condition deteriorated with continuous slowdown in Chinese steel market and continued to remain stagnant beginning of November with buyers not interested in making imports of Iron Ore.

According to sources, Chinese steel mills have suspended or limited production due to decreasing prices of finished steel products and stagnant sales situation, so the consumption volume for iron ore declines significantly. An Indian trader reported that he has not received any orders since August as gloomy steel market has kept so many buyers away from the iron ore market.

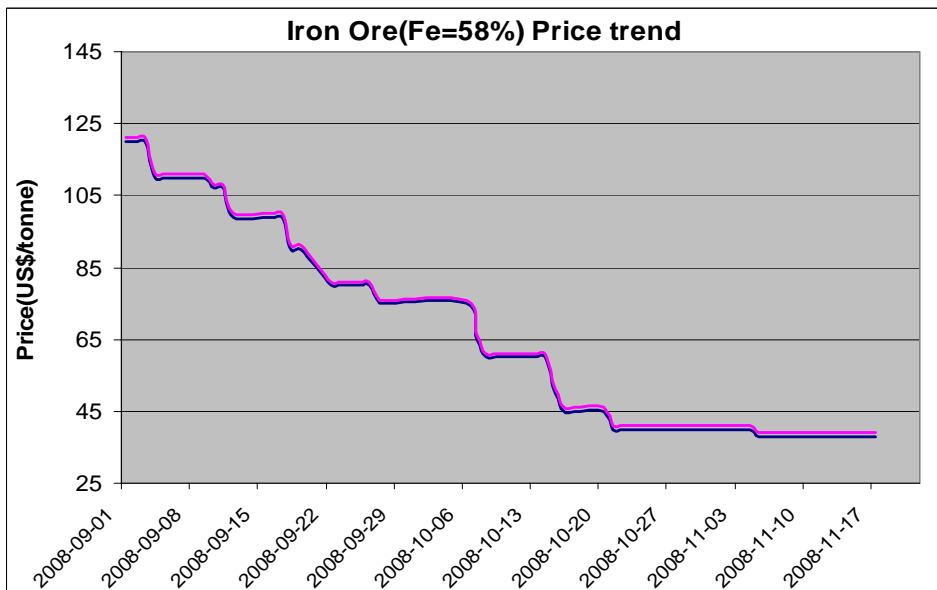

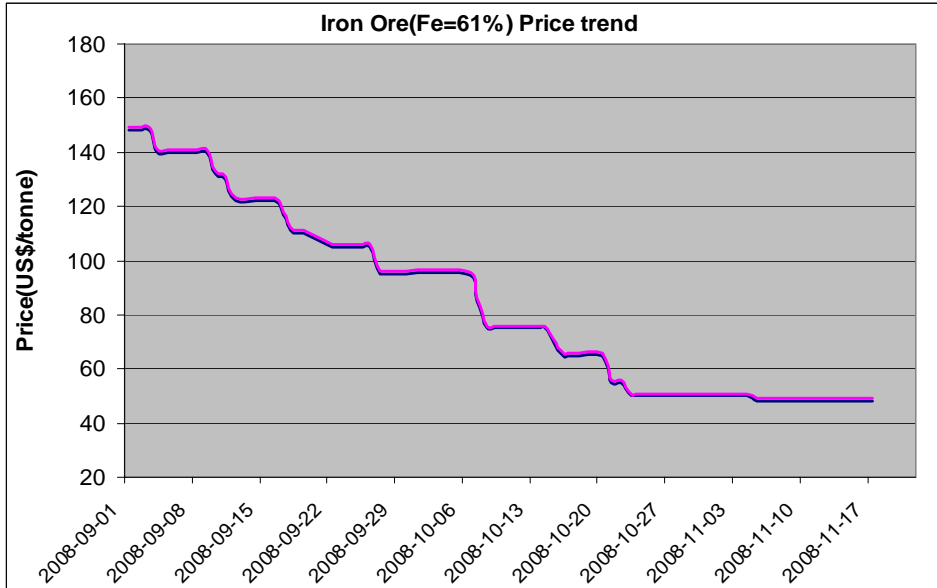

A slight stability has been noticed in the last few days across various grades: The Iron Ore market has remained stable in the last four to five days; however the sustainability is still to be seen as the market still remains unpredictable.
